

The Gardens

At Georgia Tucker

Letha Hartsfield, LPN
Resident Care Director

"We want them to be able to do as much as they can for as long as they can, SAFELY."

MEET LETHA

Experience... I have 27 years of experience ranging from office nursing to behavioral health issues; however, working in memory care is the most rewarding part of my career.

Memory care is exactly what I want to be doing because I can make the most significant impact in my community through my work at Georgia Tucker.

Being located in the Garden District places us in a central area where you're close to neighboring communities!

Our brick building is so remarkable as it used to be a schoolhouse. Many staff and residents even went to school here!

What makes The Gardens at Georgia Tucker unique?

Our personalized care makes The Gardens at Georgia Tucker stand out because we provide intimate, quality care for our residents.

Everyone in Assisted Living receives a pendant necklace which they can press anytime to alert their care attendant. The care attendant is then capable of addressing anything they may need.

We care about the work we are doing, and I really believe we are making a difference in the lives of our residents and their families.

Memory Care Unit

Interview with Resident Care Director,
Letha Hartsfield, LPN

Resident Care Director Letha Hartsfield, LPN, defines memory care as "taking care of the needs of individuals with memory loss." Though for Georgia Tucker, Letha emphasizes that memory care is "more than meeting the needs of residents, but also going the extra mile for them and their families."

"We value regularly scheduled activities in our memory care unit as they create a diversion for residents, allowing for positive distractions and creative outlets."

All-Inclusive Luxurious Living

"We take care of the needs of all residents and are cautious of their safety, which is why our memory care unit is equipped with special security features. We specialize in individualized care, daily assistance, encouragement, and redirection, all while prioritizing resident safety."

In addition to our facilities' services, we welcome home-health and hospice visits to help residents smooth transition and continuity of care.

Change can be rather tricky, so we encourage residents to allow Georgia Tucker to be the last time they have to uproot their home environment. We are prepared to home residents through all stages of life and invite you to trust us in caring for you or your loved one."

"Especially in memory care, you have to treat everyone individually because different approaches better aid different residents."

Our staffing transforms your care

One key component of our care includes around-the-clock support as we prioritize patience and understanding in our staff. Thus, we have a low resident-to-staff ratio at our facility. With 13 rooms on each floor, I never have more than 4-6 residents to a team at all times to ensure hands-on care.

The staff is what makes the facility, which is why we handpick our team and engage in ongoing staff training. To ensure the highest quality of care, we frequently educate staff on protocols to effectively handle a situation may one arise.

I've witnessed residents be comforted by something so seemingly simple, which is why our staff values getting to know each resident. Part of my job includes learning as much information as possible from the families during the intake process and relaying it to their care attendants. The better we get to know our residents, the more we can help maintain their everyday lifestyles.

I want to be available for questions about anything care. Taking this step is a big deal, so I want families to be able to talk to me about it anytime.

Communicating About You or Your Loved One's Care

Interview with Resident Care Director

Letha Hartsfield, LPN

There is a fully open communication line here at Georgia Tucker. You can call the office or my cell phone at any time.

"Upon arriving at our memory care unit, you will find our staff has the training to properly care for each of our residents on a personal level."

Choosing a place to trust can be challenging; that's why we ensure complete transparency and believe in the importance of relaying all information to residents and their loved ones.
